BEN JOHNSON

NEVER A DISTILLER.

Or Directly Or Indirectly Interested in the Sale of Whisky
His First Vote Was Cast
For Local Option.

JOHNSTON MISREPRESENTED.

Bardston, Ky., Dec. 17.—Judge I. T. Thurman, of Springfield, Ky., made a speech here Monday in favor of local option. He spoke to a crowded house. He said, in his speech, that he was just out of a heated election; that he was tired and worn out; that he was seeking a much needed rest, and would not have come to Bardston at this time except to correct some misrepresentations which were being made relative to his position upon the local option question.

In the course of his remarks he also said:

"That why should I bother about being misrepresented? Is that not the way in Kentucky now, especially when a man holds or is a prospective candidate for office? Is not your own most distinguished citizen's position on this very question almost daily misrepresented and purely for political purposes? Did not one of the Hart county papers, a bit ago, say that Ben Johnson owned and operated one of the largest distillery plants in Nelson county, when I and all of you know that he never, at any time, had any interest, directly or indirectly, in the manufacture or sale of whisky. You and I know, and every man willing to know the truth knows, that the records of your County Clerk's office, kept within a hundred feet of where I now stand, bear me testimony to the fact that the first vote he ever cast in his life was for local option in Bardston. He was voted that way for nearly a quarter of a century. At the last election held in the county upon the question, which was three years ago, he then voted for local option; and I know, and everybody knows, that he will again vote for local option next Saturday. He is a plain man of few words and yet a man who is not afraid to express his convictions. In my recent canvass for re-election as Circuit Judge of the Eleventh Judicial district, when I was being fought by the whisky interests of that district as perhaps no man was ever fought before, Ben Johnson was the only man holding public office in Kentucky outside of my district who came to my assistance. In a speech made in the very camp of the enemy, with distilleries standing all about him, he boldly and plainly stated that upon the question of local option he stood exactly where he had always stood; that he had always voted for it and always intended to do so. He has never trimmed; he has never dodged. Though he beats no drums, though he has never marched with a brass band, you need never doubt his position upon any public question. More than that, he is a 'dry' man of the right kind—he practices what he preaches. He is one of the few men of my acquaintance of whom it can be truthfully said that neither spurious, vinous nor malt liquor ever passed his lips—a glorious example to the youth of this country. But I came to talk to you of other matters. You people of Nelson county know these things better than I do."

Killing at Irvington.

Nat Calbert, colored, was killed Saturday night by negro Albert Staples, who is in jail at Hardinsburg. His trial was held yesterday. The tragedy was the result of a misunderstanding between the two.

Receiving Tobacco.

Moorman & Howard, at Glendens, received during last week about 250,000 pounds of tobacco. The tobacco in that section is not grading as high as it did last year. It is admitted by all concerned that the crop is very inferior, consequently it is not bringing the money it did last season and a number of farmers are disappointed. There is no complaint regarding the grading which seems to be satisfactory.

NEEDFUL KNOWLEDGE

Cloverport People Should Learn

To Detect the Approach of #### Kidney Disease.

The symptoms of kidney trouble are so unmistakable that they leave no ground for doubt. Sick kidneys excrete a thick, cloudy, offensive urine, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding. The back aches constantly, headaches and dizzy spells may occur and the victim is often weighed down by a feeling of languor and fatigue. Neglect these warnings and there is danger of dropsy, Bright's Disease, or diabetes. Any of these symptoms is warning enough to begin treating the kidneys at once. Delay often proves fatal.

You can use no better remedy than Doan's Kidney Pills. Here's the Cloverport proof:

John H. Willis, judge of police court, High St., Cloverport, Ky., says: "I have no hesitation in pronouncing Doan's Kidney Pills the best remedy I know for the purposes for which their use is intended. I take pleasure in recommending them to other persons who may be suffering from disordered kidneys. I will be pleased to answer any questions about Doan's Kidney Pills at any time."

Resolutions of Respect.

We, the committee, appointed by the Matron of Laura Stith Chapter No. 75 O. E. S. offer the following resolutions in memory of Sister Mary Jordan, who on the morning of Dec. 10, 1909, was summoned by the death angel quietly, but not unexpectedly to eternal rest.

Resolved First: That in the death of Sister Jordan, the order has lost one of its most faithful and devoted members, one whom we all loved. Her presence and influence will be greatly missed. The family have lost a kind and devoted wife and mother.

A husband feels the loss of her. Children are left to weep. For wife and mother is at rest. In that and long peaceful sleep.

The sleep of death.

Resolved Second: That we tender our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family in the unspeakable loss which they have sustained and we earnestly pray that the comforting grace of a compassionate father, may rest upon them.

Resolved Third: That a copy be sent to the family to each of the county papers for publication and a copy be spread on our minutes.

Committee: Miss Mary A. Payne, Miss Luc McCreedy, T. Stith.

Fentress-Hall.

Miss Sylvania Fentress and Elba Hall of Grayson county, were married Monday in Hardinsburg by Rev. J. B. Cline at the Methodist parsonage. The bride is the lovely daughter of Mr. Owen Fentress, of Glendens.

Passing on Prescriptions. Some people look on a doctor's prescription in the same light as a cook's recipe and pass it on to their friends for general use.

They forget that the same symptoms may come from totally different causes and that to take a medicine prescribed for a friend is a very risky thing to do and may do a great deal of harm.—Home Chat.

Kitchen Apron.

A kitchen apron made of gum tissue, bound with white trim, is one of the most serviceable kinds. When soiled it can easily be washed and dried. It is also a useful apron to wear when serving children their meals. The gum material can be purchased in sheet widths, and the pieces left convenient for many other purposes.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to express our heartfelt gratitude to the good women that helped so willingly and kindly to nurse our loved one and the many friends that have been with us in this dark hour.

Henry Davis and daughter and her sister, Mrs. Cliff Davis.

THE RACE FOR RICHES.

Is Wealth That Cannot Be Enjoyed

The writer once inquired of a very successful man:

"When do you ever get a moment's rest for yourself or for your own thoughts? Do you ever get a time like that?"

The very successful man hesitated for a moment and then replied:

"Why, yes, I get such a time while I am being shaved in the morning."

Is success really worth the price when it must be paid for at such a sacrifice? Will he be anxious and country houses and great estates if one has no time to visit them and enjoy their beauty? Why should one acquire wealth if he cannot find time to enjoy it? He must be content with a casual half hour in which to view them? What are wife and children if you are always thinking about the world, far too preoccupied to give them any serious thought or to receive the pleasure which their company could so easily give you?

And yet there is one sole satisfaction—if it be a satisfaction. Millions of your fellow countrymen and countrywomen will believe beyond all doubt that you are really happy and will envy you.—Munsey's Magazine.

Remanded to Jail.

Albert Staples, colored, charged with the murder of Nat Calbert, at Irvington, Christmas eve was yesterday held over to the grand jury by Judge Moorman, in the sum of $1000. In default of bail the defendant was remanded to jail.

Too Near the Throat.

In the seventies of the last century the artist, Anton von Werner, was appointed to perpetuate the German imperial coronation. He first made a sketch to submit to the old Emperor William. In this the various personages were grouped in the same order as during the coronation at Versailles. William I. standing on a raised platform, with his right hand on his hip and his left on his right the crown prince, whom the artist had represented with one foot on the upper level. The emperor examined the sketch and at once noted the position of the crown prince. He frowned, took his pencil and made a thick, rapid stroke through his son's right leg. "Not yet," said he.

Miss Nicholas Leaves.

Pointer on Road Meeting.

Hillside county, Fla., has a considerable extent of good roads, about 100 miles approximately, most of which has been improved within a few recent years. One of its country roads has been in the interest recently laid particular stress on the necessity for an adequate thickness of meeting.

It is estimated that there should be of macadam construction at least eight inches of stone on the sides and ten inches in the center. Even more would add to the longevity of the road, in its judgment.

THE REV. MATHER OFFICIATES.

Yesterday afternoon in the Methodist church south at Hardinsburg, a most attractive wedding took place when Miss Sylvania Fentress and Elba Hall were united in marriage. The ceremony was said by Rev. Mather at 2 o'clock, in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives.

The church was artistically decorated and before and after the ceremony a quartette was sung by Mrs. Shaw, Mrs. Will Lennon, Messrs. Raymond Dowell and J. H. Edwards. The music was charmingly rendered and so was the bridal march, by Mrs. Blanche Read.

The ushers were: Messrs. Roy E. Moorman, Ernest Haswell, Allen Kincheole and Judge M. B. Kincheole.

Immediately after the wedding the bridal party and the immediate family were entertained at Mr. Skillman's home, where a most elaborate dinner was served.

Cantata Beautiful.

The Cantata, "Emmanuel" was sung beautifully Sunday night by a number of talented young people of this city. The music was rendered in the Baptist church. Miss Rebecca Willis, pianist and Mr. Lawrence Murray, director, deserve much praise for their diligence in preparing the cantata, but truly, "there was glory enough for all," for each and every one did admirably.

AROUND THE CORNER

Recently a "fern" man came to Cloverport to see one of the town's beautiful girls. Of course, the young lady took him to the post office for many reasons, and just as they were entering, a most clever looking man passed on the opposite door and her escort, spoke to him. "Oh, who's your friend? Isn't he grand, great?" exclaimed the girl. With that her friend called the stranger and introduced him. The girl was completely initiated and showed it plainly. The next day when her "fern" suitor called, the pursued girl said to him, "You are so unselfish, so kind to me. I can't understand why you are so good." "My dear," he asked softly, "I thought the other man was so great, grand, etc." "He was until I met him," she answered. Then her devoted lover told her that was the reason he introduced her. He wanted her to get her "dose" of him. After all the man's motive was most selfish. And the girl laughed up her sleeve, for down in her heart she wanted him to be selfish sometimes.

ROSETTA.

A bright, charming girl who assisted with the Christmas goods at one of the leading stores in this city last season, certainly made an impression while there for so soon after the holidays and received a post-card from a navy member of the masculine sex, asking her to correspond. She did not remember of ever seeing him or hearing his name.

When she finished relating her experience, she was asked if she answered his card, and she explained, "No I didn't like his postal, it was a one center."

It has come to that, men even must display good taste and "junk" in the sending of post-cards.

CLOVERPORT, KY., WEDNESDAY, DEC. 29, 1909

The tobacco situation at Hardinsburg is serious to the farmers. They have sold their pooled tobacco but can't deliver it on account of not being able to secure a house. The farmers held a meeting there last Monday to see if they could secure a suitable house but failed. They sent a committee to see the Beards who have two houses, but they failed to make any arrangements. The Beards are buying themselves and refused to rent or lease their houses. It is thought they will secure a house at Kirk and one at McQuady. What the tobacco growers will have to do, is to build their own houses and be in shape to take care of their own product if they continue to pool their tobacco. The best they can do is to join the Burley Association and combine their interests. The Burley people have adopted the only feasible plan to fight the trust and fix the prices.

Beard Bros., Hardinsburg, are offering their entire stock of thoroughbred Horses and Colts at reduced prices to close out their stock business. This is a splendid opportunity for anyone who wants to go into the live stock business in this county. They have built up a splendid business in this line and here's a chance for the right man to step into a good paying business.

The pooled tobacco of Warrick and Spencer counties, Indiana, has been sold at a price averaging 8 1/2 cents. The pool contained 3,000,000 pounds.

A glad, glorious New Year to the subscribers and friends of the News. We hope each of you will have health and wealth in the days of 1910.

Mrs. Lanier's Farm School.
The farm school maintained by Mrs. Sidney Lanier, Jr., near Elliot, Mo., is of interest. Twenty girls were graduated recently after a summer course in dairy and poultry work. Mrs. Lanier hopes to attract city girls especially, taking them away from the monotonous routine of office and store work, though still fitting them to earn their own living. "My school is a success," says Mrs. Lanier, "I have taught my girls to make hay, to grow vegetables and, above all, to make good butter. The best opening for them is in the dairy, and I am sure that dairy work is more congenial to the average young woman than pounding a typewriter or standing behind a counter all day. Certainly it gives better health and rosier cheeks. I have several stenographers with me, and they say they will not return to the old, wearing routine. We now are concentrating our work on the dairy school, and we are turning out experts in butter-making. Poultry raising is another occupation fitted for women, and I have several pupils busy at that. All the girls are contented and happy, and it will surprise me if one of them returns to the hard life of the city."

Saving His Wind.

A highland athletic gathering was in full swing, and considerable interest centered in the chances of a local competitor who had entered for several events and confidently expected to win at least one of them. His first attempt was in that of hardest of races the quarter mile, and he was easily defeated.

"Donal, Donal," exclaimed a supporter reprovingly, "why did ye no rin faster?"
"Him faster," echoed Donald contemptuously, "an' me reserving mase' for the laggie competition."

THE NEW MACADAM.

How Road Builders Have Improved on Scotchman's Idea.

IDEAL HIGHWAY NECESSITIES

Careful Grading, Good Drainage, Substantial Foundation and a Wearing Surface Necessary For the Up to Date Macadamized Road.

In a recent speech on the construction and maintenance of macadam roads Austin B. Fletcher, secretary of the Massachusetts highway commission, said:

Macadam's road is a thing of the past. In fact, the road of the kind built by the Scotchman John Loudon Macadam and named in his honor has been obsolete in this country for some time.

Macadam knew nothing of machine broken stone, and he did not dream that a broken stone roadway could be made as smooth as a billiard table by the use of steam road rollers.

In these days when we speak of a macadam road we mean a road with the following characteristics:

A road with easy gradients, usually not exceeding a five foot rise in 100 feet of length.

A road with drainage appliances so perfect that substantially no water reaches the broken stone from below.

A road with a foundation consisting of either the natural soil, if suitable, otherwise of artificially placed gravel or unbroken stone, so that the foundation with the superimposed broken stone will have sufficient strength to distribute over the underlying soil any load to which the road is likely to be subjected.

A road with a wearing surface of two or more layers of broken stone, small in size, those at the bottom usually not more than two and one-half inches in diameter and those at the top generally varying from one and one-quarter inches to one-half inch.

BEAUTIFUL STREET OF MACADAMIZED ROADWAY.

(From Good Roads Magazine, New York.)

In diameter, each course or layer carefully spread, uniform in depth and rolled thoroughly with a steam road roller before the next course is placed. By this process, the rolling being done on thin layers, the stones become thoroughly compacted and the void spaces or interstices between the stones are largely eliminated. The final process consists in spreading over the surface of the upper layer of broken stone a thin covering of the screenings which result from the machine breaking of the stones and which contain a considerable proportion of fine dust, then finishing or grading the screenings into such voids as remain between the broken stone and rolling the road with the steam roller.

So far as the treatment of macadam roads is concerned, the remedy seems to be in the application of protective coats or coverings of a bituminous nature.

Before any of the bituminous materials are applied it is essential that the road surface be evened up and patched, where necessary, rolled and swept clean of all dust. The bituminous materials are then applied hot to the road surface by means of spraying machines or gravity distributors or by hand in quantities varying from one-quarter to three-quarters of a gallon to the square yard and immediately covered evenly with sand, fine gravel or broken stone screenings.

The annual maintenance will be merely the cost of renewing the covering, probably from 4 cents to 5 cents per square yard per annum. Its expense is so low that it is well worth the trouble of no wear whatever will take place on the broken stone, and in a sense that portion of the ordinary macadam road which takes the wear will last after be only a foundation for the bituminous wearing coat.

The protective coat referred to would probably be inadequate for traffic, and the introduction of bituminous binders into the voids between the broken stones would be necessary.

A good deal of work of this sort is being done now in an experimental way by mixing the bituminous material with the broken stone before it is placed on the roadway or by grouting the bituminous material into the spaces between and around the broken stone after it has been placed and partially rolled into place.

The cost of the ordinary macadam road is probably from 20 to 50 cents per square yard, and the roadway will require a protective covering at least as often as once in two years. It would be economical to rely upon the protective covering and to omit the bituminous material from the voids between the stone while the traffic remains as at present.

A Real Cute Dog.

A good dog story is attributed to a visitor to an English country inn on market day. "Now," he said, "I've got a dog here I wouldn't take £20 for. You can believe me or not, but what I am going to tell you is perfectly true. In the early part of last spring I lost six ewes and could find them nowhere. One day about three weeks later as I was looking across from my house to the edge of the moor about two miles away I noticed some sheep. I got my telescope and assured myself that they were mine. I placed the telescope in a suitable position and made Bob look through it. After about a minute the dog wagged his tail and looked at me as if he understood what I wanted and was off like a shot. In less than two hours he brought the sheep home safe and sound."

Smokeless

Until science discovered a way to construct the Automatic Smokeless Device, and make it completely dependable, all oil heaters had one common great fault—smoke.

With the advent of the Automatic Smokeless Device, and its practical application to the

PERFECTION Oil Heater

(Equipped with Smokeless Device)

the smoke problem was successfully solved.

The Perfection Oil Heater is the only heater equipped with this which insures a steady, full-glowing heat, with the wick turned up as high as it will go, without a shred of smoke. Reverse the motion, turn the wick down—there's no odor. The smokeless device automatically locks and prevents the upward movement of the wick beyond the proper exposure. That is the secret. This splendid result gives leadership to the Perfection.

You may now have all the heat you want—when you want it—and where you want it—without the annoyance of smoke or odor. Brass font holds 4 quarts of oil, which permits a glowing heat for 9 hours. Brass wick tube—dumper top—cool handle. Cleaned in a minute. The Perfection is beautifully finished in Nickel or Japan.

"Sure Cure"

"I would like to guide suffering women to a sure cure for female troubles," writes Mrs. R. E. Mercer, of Frozen Camp, W. Va. "I have found no medicine equal to Cardui. I had suffered for about four years. Would have headache for a week at a time, until I would be nearly crazy. I took Cardui and now I never have the headache any more."

Take CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

The pains from which many women suffer every month are unnecessary. It's not safe to trust to strong drugs, right at the time of the pains. Better to take Cardui for a while, before and after, to strengthen the system and cure the cause. This is the sensible, scientific, the right way. Try it.

A HANDY CUPBOARD.

An Up to Date Way of Making the Kitchen Attractive.

It is quite usual now for people living in a small flat, with only one living room, to have their meals in the kitchen, especially in those cases where the foreign method is adopted of employing a servant, for certain hours only, who sleeps out.

The illustration shows suggestions for making the kitchen stove and dresser as ornamental as is possible under the circumstances. It is very important also to keep all the apparatus used for household cleaning hidden out of sight. For this purpose is recommended a handy cupboard made on a skeleton principle which can easily be fitted into a recess, if one exists, at the side of the fireplace. You will then require two half inch boards cut to the right measurement. One of these acts as the top, and it is secured to wooden supports which have been plugged to the wall for security, and a curtain rod is fixed across the front. The second board has slots cut in it at intervals, as shown in the picture, where you can see also the manner of fitting together the shelf and its supports. Brooms and brushes rest securely in the slots, while beneath them there is plenty of space for dustpans, cloths, oil cans, etc. A denim curtain drawn across the cupboard will conceal all these ugly but necessary implements from view.

But in the event of there being no suitable recess an extra board for one

Women as Well as Men are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discomfiting the nerves, sapping the vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine smells like the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar sized bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet, telling all about Swamp-Root. These are Swamp-Root letters received from sufferers who found Swamp-Root to be just the remedy needed. Write for them to Dr. K. H. Williams, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but Swamp-Root, Dr. K. H. Williams, N. Y., and the address, Birmingham, N. Y., on every bottle.

Emma was different from her mother and sister. She never gave herself airs. He felt himself nearer to her, the more she became endeared to him. She had changed much since she had left Brooks. A spirituality that he had not, of course, known in her in the old days had increased the charm of her personality, but her sensible, unaffected manner, her gentleness, were always the same. More than once he had surprised a wistful faraway look in her eyes, a fleeting expression of melancholy, and his solicitude had been to Emma the captain was no longer an object of fear and detestation. She knew that his affection was purely paternal, and he knew that she understood him as no one else could. He never had or did. She manifested her appreciation of his regard by a confidence which was to the old fellow a comfort and huge delight. Not that his delight took a demonstrative form, that was not in his nature, and Emma would have been greatly astonished could she have known what a boon to him her frank friendliness was.

The fact was that his good deed to Emma had been the first striking effect of a softening process that had been going on very, very slowly, so slowly as to be noticeable only in the extent, for several years, which began when he had been admitted to the family circle of his late wife's manager and with which, all unconscious, Emma had had a good deal to do. He had anchored himself to the family as his one comfort, his life, his home and life. But it had been a cautious anchoring, maintained with distrust and carrying with it no reciprocity in the shape of satisfaction or other favors. A lighter who had got nothing out of existence without fighting, ever on the alert to forestall an expected treacherous blow, his hand down to his hip pocket, so to speak, at the slightest movement that appeared to him to be suspicious.

As time wore on, however, his distrust had vanished, and Mrs. Harris and her daughters had become a necessity to him. He was being elevated, he preferred Emma to the others, which is saying that he was the person he liked best of all, but his manner of showing it had been so unobtrusive, so unobtrusive, that he had been misunderstood. In the first place she had hated him for his supposed injustice to her husband, whereas, having read Brooks' through from the start, he despised him more and more and he even to make her lot easier. When he returned, battling with his unwillingness to let go of his high estimate of her had been unmerited, had caused him to try her out relentlessly on the occasion of her appeal for Brooks, none with him and at his mercy in his rooms, she had seen that a warm heart, full of pure regard for her, beat beneath his forbidding exterior. From that night she had learned to respect him and judge him at his real value. His actions and idiosyncrasies revealed at last their true interpretation.

As for Williams, the proof that he had not been deceived in her fortified his faith and made him fully happy. He was getting used to her. He had won his hard fought, lifelong battle with the world and was as rich as he cared to be. The devil was disposed to turn monk. The restraint of affection, no demonstrative, but existent, which came with the approach of life's sunset and which was not to be brand elsewhere was gratified there. He put on slippers, smoked his pipe, had his favorite chair, expressed his views in his authoritative way and liked to be consulted.

But he never ceased to be impressed with the ostentatious proclivities and aristocratic airs of Mrs. Harris and Beth, though he laughed indulgently at many of the mother's follies. To him the two women represented the beau monde and were unobtainable on all that pertained thereto. He deemed it a privilege to place one of his automobiles at the family's exclusive command, and it was the most luxurious vehicle money could buy. That he did not give it outright was because he knew his circumstances would not enable him to maintain it.

seives, so it don't matter, as it won't go any further. Suppose Emma'd married him? Is his heart all right? Is he on the level? I'd bank on him, and that's more'n I'd say of any other man I know. Is he capable? Is he any make 'em. Is he good looking? He ain't had looking, and with that smile of his he has most good looking I've seen. I ain't a rule. Both says he ain't poetic and all that sort of thing. Maybe-maybe, but what of that? Also she says he ain't what you'd call educated. That may be, too, but when he wants to be can bring an amount of cold sense to bear that'll upset most men's logic and give a bluff no chance. He'll go far if he keeps on, for all his slow ways, and let me tell you it ain't the man who starts off at top speed that always wins the race."

"What you say may be all true, but these qualities haven't made Jimmy rich so far, and I doubt if they ever will. A man can't have everything, but money, as I've often told my girls, makes up for a lot of shortcomings, and without it—what? Here's Emma, married for seven years, separated from her husband, can't get a divorce unless it's of the Dakota sort, which I'd never consent to, hasn't got a cent in the world and couldn't collect a cent of alimony if she had the right to it because the beast's a pauper."

"No, and if he were as wealthy as the grand Turk I'd starve to death before I'd touch any money or anything else belonging to him."

"Mrs. Harris," answered the captain, with deep feeling, "money, while it's a whole lot, ain't everything, as I've found, that's the fact, and it's five years to do it. It's no fault of Emma's that she's poor, and I tell you that if she was to marry a man like Smith, I'd settle $500,000 worth of Latin-American live stock on her for a wedding present. I would, by Sam'man's!"

"You would do that?" asked Mrs. Harris, overwhelmed with astonishment.

"This minute."

It was all she could find to say about the reiteration.

But if the family were amazed, Williams was evidently alarmed at having allowed his feelings to get the better of his discretion in this way, for he lapsed into gloomy silence and very soon departed abruptly.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of J. C. F. Fletcher

Louis the Magnificent.

As soon as he rose he was dressed by his valet in a coat of blue cloth. Two little caplets of gold cord were sewed to the cloth. Under the coat was a white waistcoat, which was almost entirely hidden by the ribbons and wide sashes of his orders. His satin breeches ended in a pair of high boots or gaiters of red velvet, which came above the knees and were more supple than leather, for the thickness of leather on legs that were often painful from cold would have created too much friction. He made a great point of these boots. He thought that they made him look like a general, ready at any moment to spring upon a horse, though this was a physical impossibility to him since he was much too fat and too infirm. He used powder with a view to hiding the white locks of age, and this gave him the complexion of a young man.

Along in Saw Mill at Midnight

unminded of dampness, drafts, storms or cold, W. J. Astin asked as Night Watchman, at Banner Springs, Tenn. Such exposure gave him a severe cold that settled on his lungs. At last he had to give up work. He tried many remedies but all failed till he used Dr. King's New Discovery. "After using one bottle" he writes, "I went back to work as well as ever. Severe Colds, stubborn Coughs, inflamed throat and sore lungs, Hemorrhages, Croup and Whooping Cough get quick relief and prompt cure from this glorious medicine. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free, guaranteed by Severs Drug Store."

The Use of Wide Tires.

As to the desirability of the use of the wide tires there can be no question. The most casual observation will suffice to convince any one of the damage which a heavily laden wagon equipped with the ordinary sharp rounded, narrow tires will produce on any road. There is also another and perhaps even greater advantage to be gained by the use of wide tires—namely, the increased hauling capacity attained.

THE AMERICAN WOMAN.

Her Position Here and Its Influence in the Old World.

There is no doubt that the most interesting thing to the European, who lands on the northern shores of the new world is the American woman—that happy, victorious heroine of modern civilization, who has discovered how to extract from the new condition of woman all the advantages with almost none of the inconveniences; that being who has learned how to assume the masculinity in all that regards independence and liberty of action and remain feminine in grace, charm and altruism; that American beauty, that American genius, whose wonders are seen and felt in all the American and European reviews, whose writers declare her to be engaged almost entirely in severe study, in masculine work, sport and similar occupations.

Europe, moreover, is right. The American woman is not only one of the most interesting phenomena of North America, but also the phenomenon of the new world that might have the greatest and gravest effect on the old, shaking on their foundations the essential principles of our female instruction and training. And throwing the society of the old continent or continent, a wish rest to a greater extent than is realized on the antique functions of woman in the family and in society.—Gina Lombroso Ferrero in Putnam's Magazine.
